

CONCURRENT (EMBEDDED) CERTIFICATES

Students may pursue a graduate certificate concurrently with their doctoral program. Courses taken as part of a certificate program may also satisfy degree requirements. Certificates function similarly to a cognate, which is a minimum of nine (9) hours of course work organized around a narrow subfield. Certificates provide doctoral students with the ability to earn enhanced credentials. Enrolled students do not have to pay the application fee to pursue a concurrent certificate.