The Archaeology Program at UNC Greensboro introduces students to past civilizations and cultures around the globe and to the analytical methods, techniques, and theories that archaeologists use to facilitate their study. The major is designed to develop anthropological, historical, and geographical perspectives in archaeological research, encompassing prehistoric and early historic cultures. The Program's faculty is actively involved in research and/or fieldwork in the Mediterranean region, the Middle East, North America and South America, and students participate in these or other field work projects in addition to meeting classroom requirements. Graduates of the Program are prepared for advanced training in archaeology and museum studies; cultural resource management; team leading in a variety of settings; and other professions for which critical thinking and good communication skills are necessary.

- The Archaeology Program offers the Archaeology concentration in the Liberal and Interdisciplinary Studies Major. See the Liberal and Interdisciplinary Studies Major (https://catalog.uncg.edu/arts-sciences/special-programs-liberal-studies-major/) for requirements.
