Freshman Seminars

The College of Arts and Sciences

105F Foust Building
336-334-3186
https://freshmanseminars.uncg.edu

Undergraduate

Freshman Seminars are small discussion classes that introduce students to various areas of study in the General Education Program. Each seminar focuses on a topic, issue, or problem selected by the instructor; seminar topics change from one semester to the next and are described in a booklet that is distributed to advisors at the beginning of each semester. Additional information on Freshman Seminars may be obtained from the College of Arts and Sciences, 105F Foust Building (336-334-3186).