Political science is the study of the government, politics and policies of the United States and other nations; of levels of government, such as city and state, within those nations; and of relationships among nations. It studies the political behavior, attitudes, and ideas of groups and individuals.

All 100- and 200-level courses are introductions to the study of political science. Beginning students are urged to take any 100- or 200-level course in which they may be interested.

Students seeking electives in political science may select from almost the entire range of offerings. Non-majors are urged to select their electives widely to satisfy individual intellectual interests and are not restricted to 100- and 200-level courses.

Internships and field experiences are available to both majors and non-majors in national government, nonprofit agencies, public administration, and electoral politics.

Professor
- Hunter Bacot
- William E. Crowther
- Franklin D. Gilliam
- Fabrice Lehoucq
- Gregory E. McAvoy
- Jerry Pubantz

Associate Professor
- Allison Faye Bramwell
- David B. Holian
- Susan W. Johnson
- Tamaki Onishi

Assistant Professor
- Michael Broache
- Andrew Michael Engelhardt
- Patrick T Giamario

Senior Lecturer
- M. Jeffrey Colbert
- A. Leigh Sink

Lecturer
- J. Alan Boyette
- Elizabeth McNamara
- Kevin M Redding

Graduate-level faculty
- Political Science, B.A. (https://catalog.uncg.edu/arts-sciences/political-science/political-science-ba/)
- Political Science Second Academic Concentration (https://catalog.uncg.edu/arts-sciences/political-science/political-science-second-academic-concentration/)
- Political Science, M.A. (https://catalog.uncg.edu/arts-sciences/political-science/political-science-ma/)
- Nonprofit Management, Post-Baccalaureate Certificate (https://catalog.uncg.edu/arts-sciences/political-science/nonprofit-management-pbc/)