COMMUNICATION SCIENCES AND DISORDERS

School of Health and Human Sciences

300 Ferguson Building
336-334-5184
http://hhs.uncg.edu/csd

Kristine Lundgren, Department Chair
Lucia Mendez, Graduate Program Director

About

The Department of Communication Sciences and Disorders (CSD) offers a two-year master's degree program in Speech Language Pathology. The M.A. in Speech-Language Pathology (SLP) is a nationally ranked program, accredited by the American Speech-Language Hearing Association's Council on Academic Accreditation in Audiology and Speech-Language Pathology. Our undergraduate, pre-professional program prepares students with a background in speech, language, and hearing sciences, and in speech, language, and hearing disorders in anticipation of their continued studies at the graduate level.

Professor
Lisa Guerrant Fox-Thomas
Alan G. Kamhi
Kristine Lundgren
Robert Mayo
Lisa McDonald
Denise Anne Tucker

Academic Professional Professor
Perry F. Flynn

Associate Professor
RaMonda Horton
Lucia Ingrid Mendez

Academic Professional Associate Professor
Emily Lynn Hamuka
Kelly Turner Harrington
Amy M Myers

Assistant Professor
Jessica Ann Obermeyer

Academic Professional Assistant Professor
Jennifer M Burkey
Brooke Elizabeth Holt

G Graduate-level faculty